Kelvin Hall, Glasgow. Lord Kelvin (William Thomson) was born in Belfast in 1824. He was a Glasgow Professor for 53 years and 60 important inventions bear his name. He was the first man to receive the Order of Merit. He died in 1907 and was buried in Westminster Abbey. The Kelvin Hall of Industries, opened by the King and Queen on the 12th July, 1927, commemorates his labours in the cause of science and sea-service in particular.
